

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

It is the duty of good journalism to present a range of informed positions on views, not churn out biased propaganda. To allow this is a threat to democracy and free press.

Sinclair's actions are a good example of the dangers of large companies controlling the airwaves and show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. We need to assure that A.J. Lieblich was wrong when he said, "Freedom of the press belongs to the man who owns one."

Thank you.
